

JUNIOR COLLEGE RE-NAMED CLARK

"Clark Junior College" will be the official name of the new junior college here, it was announced today following completion of a contest to determine the best appellation. "McLaughlin" was the leading designation, it was said, but since "Clark," "Lewis and Clark" and "Clark County" drew a total of more than twice as many votes this selection was made.

Coincidentally the college announced that a busy week is planned. The first guest night will be held Monday night at 100 W. Thirteenth st., with the college dramatic club as host, and with a program of two one act plays and two marionette plays. Tuesday the students are to visit the Portland art museum; Wednesday Beatrice Young of Pacific university will be guest speaker; Thursday the college will provide the program for the Vancouver Kiwanis club; and on Friday members of the board of directors and faculty will go to a meeting of the state association of junior colleges at the University of Washington.
