

2-Year Program Map for the AST2 - Computer Science

Area of Study: Science, Technology, and Engineering

Program maps are suggested academic plans and should not be used in the place of regular academic advising. Your student entry method, placement, course availability, and program requirements are subject to change and transfer credit(s) may change your map/plan.

Computer Science involves the design, development and analysis of computer programs and applications. Computer scientists have expertise in programming, algorithms, digital logic and software engineering. Computer scientists' programs are in use across a wide-variety from products – simply any device with a processor (smart device) requires computer scientists to program it. They work in multi-disciplinary teams on computer systems, gaming, robotics, automation, banking, healthcare, and many other areas. Computer science students at Clark College get the opportunity to develop projects by applying their classroom knowledge to solve real-world problems. Projects involve developing ideas, creating algorithms, programming and presenting the results. Upon completion, students may continue their study toward a Bachelor of Science in Computer Science, or may seek internship/entry-level programming positions.

All students interested in Computer Science should contact Computer Science faculty for advising as soon as possible. Advising schedules are available at <https://www.engrcs.com/schedule>
