

CLARK COLLEGE KICKS OFF FALL TERM

MIKE SALSBURY/The Columbian

Needing some assistance finding a class, Clark College student Nathan Olds didn't have to look far Monday, the first day of the fall term. Admissions worker Cristin Rigney provided an answer and a map. As of Friday, Olds and 11,266 schoolmates had registered for courses at Clark, a shade under last year's total. Those pursuing "The Next Step," as the Vancouver school's slogan urges, should know their way around campus by the time finals week arrives Dec. 4.