

Clark College music professor Donald Appert has been honored with the ASCAPLUS Award, presented by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. This is the second consecutive year that he has received the ASCAPLUS Award. ASCAPLUS is an awards program that provides cash and recognition to active writers in the early and middle stages of their careers and to established writers whose main activity is outside of broadcast media. ASCAPLUS Awards are determined annually by a panel of distinguished music experts who are neither members, nor employees of ASCAP, and are completely independent in their award adjudication.
