

Environmental Health and Safety

January 7, 2014

Electronic Waste

After all of the gifts and electronic upgrades that have occurred over the holiday season many people have older electronics that they want to recycle. The information below will allow you to do just that.

Electronic waste includes desktop computers, laptops, cell phones, cameras, telephone, game consoles and more.

Reusable Equipment

Usable electronics can be donated to many charities or organizations that will manage the data and pass your equipment along. These include Salvation Army, Good Will and Share, Inc.

Recycling Equipment

Electronics that are not able to be used anymore can be recycled at a number of vendors in the area. These include Empower Up, IMS Electronics and any transfer site.

There are also a number of organizations that will repurpose your electronics for use by individuals that need emergency communication means or are trying to get their life back on track. This includes the YWCA cell phone program.

Information Sourced from the following sites

<http://www.clark.wa.gov/recycle/A-Z/>

Prepared by:
Rebecca Benson

Sustainable is Attainable:
Promote Green Education and Practices