History Emphasis - Associate in Arts Degree

Area of Study: Public Service, Society and Education

Studying historical events allows us to glimpse into early civilization and better understand how the past has shaped the present. History is a foundation of the social sciences and offers students the opportunity to examine human actions, ideas, and beliefs from the past through the lens and methodology of a social scientist. At Clark, students will gain cultural awareness studying a range of material that covers everything from the Inca civilization of the high Andes to colonial America on the eve of the revolution. Our faculty bring a wealth of professional experience teaching and traveling abroad, providing students with a global perspective in the classroom.

> Free Tutoring Services are available to support you throughout your degree completion.
