Anthropology Emphasis - Associates in Arts Degree

Area of Study: Science, Technology, and Engineering

Interest areas within Clark College’s Associate in Arts (AA) degree provide students with an opportunity to take classes in a specific area that may match the academic major upon transferring to a four-year college or university. Anthropology is an interest area that focuses on understanding the evolution and behavior of human beings. Anthropology examines the physical changes to the human body created by political, cultural, and linguistic practices over time. Some courses in a program may need to be changed depending on the transfer institution. Please consult an advisor before determining an AA focus area.

> Free Tutoring Services are available to support you throughout your degree completion.
