Area of Study: Science, Technology, and Engineering

Whether on your computer or mobile phone, the internet is populated by web content that's used to engage users with various online needs. On an average day, an individual may interact with a social network, online store, use a video streaming service, or use other internet applications – all of them built or maintained by web developers. At Clark, students gain foundational skills in web coding, multimedia, and web design practices that provide a well-rounded set of skills necessary for web developers to thrive in today's market.
