You have the option to submit an appeal to address financial aid suspension due to reaching the maximum timeframe. Appeals must be submitted by the priority processing date listed on the Financial Aid website to be considered for financial aid for that term and include all required documentation and signatures. Incomplete appeals will not be considered.

Instructions:

Step 1: Type, print, and sign a personal statement. Describe in detail why you have attempted the maximum number of credits for your program.

- Did you need to retake classes due to unsatisfactory grades or did you withdraw from classes?
- Did you change your program or complete a previous program?
- Did you transfer in credits that do not apply toward your program of study?
- Describe your plan to finish your program in a timely manner.

Step 2: Obtain and submit a current Academic Advisement Report from your Program Advisor. Make sure your academic advisement report is signed by you and your advisor.

An academic advisement report is issued by your academic advisor and confirms what program you are pursuing, what classes you have taken that satisfy the requirements, and what classes are remaining for you to complete the program. This helps the Committee determine how many credits, and what classes should be funded if your appeal is approved.

Appeals are reviewed by the Financial Aid Committee, and you will be notified of the Committee's decision through your preferred email account. Please allow 4-6 weeks for the appeal to be reviewed and please note that the Committee's decision is final and cannot be appealed further.
