Tax school, Clark College partner on training

Pacific Northwest Tax School and Clark College's Corporate & Continuing Education program have established a partnership to offer online basic tax preparer education classes.

Washington residents will have the opportunity to earn a certificate of completion in tax education through the tax school's interactive online learning management system.

April Gutierrez, CEO and founder of Pacific Northwest Tax School, said the Internal Revenue Service's implementation this fall of mandatory testing, registration, and education requirements for paid tax preparers who are not CPAs will increase demand for tax education programs.
