

Northeast Hazel Dell: It may be cold outside, but work at the Hazel Dell School and Community Garden carries on. On a recent cool and dry afternoon, Clark College students

Northeast Hazel Dell: Washington State University Food $ense and 4-H Coordinator Jodee Nickel, center, helps Clark College students, from left, Nancy Nisbet, Steven A. Anderson, Shantee Hayes, Natasha Poperecini, Lena Nichols and Tigran Kalantarian, during a work party at the Hazel Dell School and Community Garden.

assisted Washington State University Food $ense and 4-H Coordinator Jodee Nickel and WSU master gardeners Bobbi Bellomy and Barbara Nordstrom in planting raspberries, spreading bark, moving soil into beds, and removing weeds. The garden is being "put to bed for the winter" and prepared for the 15 new families and 10 returning families who will garden raised beds in spring. In addition, the children of the adjacent Boys and Girls Club and Hazel Dell Elementary School will participate in spring projects including Hazel Dell Elementary School's annual Enrichment Fair.