

Clark College earns praise

I agree with Bob Knight's Oct. 9 letter, "College, community celebrate," praising the publishing of Clark College's 75th birthday on the front page in the midst of panicked and frustrating news dominating our nation. It makes us feel proud and enables us to refocus. I witnessed two areas in which Clark College excels; its commitment to student success and the excellent reputation of its professors, when I accompanied 100 students of three music groups to South Korea this summer. It was my honor to be music ambassador for such talented and dedicated groups of students and professors. I heard many positive emotional comments from students that will affect them forever. Their hearts and minds opened to people in a different part of the world. They performed in three different venues, but for each performance, they prepared with dedication, surpassing everyone's expectations.

I salute Clark College's excellency.

Hooja Kim

VANCOUVER