

Designs proposed for Clark College garden

Clark College will have submitted proposed designs of a Japanese garden on its main campus in early January.

Clark partnered on the project with the city of Vancouver, the Parks Foundation and an anonymous donor who committed up to $1 million for its design, construction and maintenance.

Seattle-based Murase Assoc. was hired for conceptual design.

The garden will incorporate Clark's 100 Shirofugen cherry trees, gifted to Vancouver in 1990. A groundbreaking date has not been set.
