

New coach to lead soccer team at Clark

An award-winning coach has been named to coach the Clark College Women's soccer team.

Stan Rodrigues, named Co-coach of the Year in the Pacific Conference of the Women's Soccer Premier League, will succeed Troy Sletten, who served as the coach for the past eight years.

In addition to serving as head coach of the Portland Rain, Rodrigues was head coach of the West Side Metro Soccer Club from Beaverton, Ore., a team that earned the title of state champions in two different age groups.

At the college level, Rodrigues played on a Central Oregon Community College club team in Bend, Ore., and a Lane Community College club team in Eugene, Ore. He also played for Liga Nacional, a semi-professional men's club team located in Larchmont, N.Y.

In the past eight years, Clark's women's soccer teams have gone to the playoffs at Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges tournament six times, and competed in the quarterfinal round four times.
